A WHOLE VILLAGE

Attacked by Grip-One Family Escapes by Using Pe-ru-na.

Winona, Stark Co., Ind. During the winter I and my famfly of six were taken with la grippe. The disease was very prevalent at that passed in the senate by a majority of time in the village where I resided, nearly everyone being sick with it. Our doctors treated it as best they could, the others being voted down. but were very unsuccessful in the treatment of it. As soon as my family were taken sick I went to the drugstore and maintained their convictions and the bought six bottles of Pe-rn-na, and we all took it according to the directions given on the bottle; and although our vases seemed to be more than usually fielent in the outset, yet our recovery was prompt, and we were all well much sooner than those who were treated by the regular physicians.

Many people died of this la grippe during this epidemic, and few if any, were sick so short a time as myself and family. After we were all well we had one bottle of Pe-ru-na left.

Porto Ricon Bill Went Through the Senate.

FREE TRADE BALLOT 80 TO 40.

The Davis Substitute Lost by That Vote and Nelson Amendment 29 to 41-Mason and Foraker Delivered Notable Speeches-Wellington Also Talked.

Washington, April 4.—The Porto Ricon tariff and civil government bill nine, the final vote being 40 to 31. Only committee amendments were adopted, Preceding the vote advocates and opponents of the bill brilliantly and eloquently auditors were kept in a state of constant excitement. The particularly notable speeches of the day were delivered by Mr. Mason, of Illinois, in opposition to the measure, and Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, who replied to a brief speech by Mr. Vellington, of Maryland. It was the Oh o semator's desire to clear up any misunderstanding or misinformation concerning the bill. After a number of committee amendments were agreed to without division, Mr. Davis, of Minnesota, offered his amendment making Porto Rico an internal revenue district and granting free trade. The vote on this amendment was taken by yeas and nays. If was lost =20 to 10.

The detailed vote on the Davis amendment follows:

Yeas - Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Clark (Mon.), Clay, Cockrell, Culberson, Dann L. Davis (Republican), Harris, Hetteld, Jones (Ark.), Kenney, Lindsay, McLeurin, Martin, Muson, (Republican), Money, Morgan, Nelson (Republican), Pettus, Practor (Republican), Simon (Republican), Sulliyan, Tahaferro, Tillman, Turley, Vest, Wellington (Republican)-

Kenn, Kyle, Ledge, McBride, McConnas, McMillan. Penrose, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Platt (N. Y.), Pritchard, Quarles, Ross, Scott, Sewell, Shoup, Spouner, Stewart, Teller, Thurston, Wetmore, Wolcott-40.

Pairs were announced as follows, those first mentioned being favorable to the amendment: Caffery-Burrows, Chilton-Eikms, Rawhus-Hanna, Hoar-McEnery, Mallory-Hale, Turner-Warren, Pettigrew-Aldrich, Butter-McCumber. Mr. Ecveridge was the only absentee who was not paired. He has a regular pair with Mr. Ciark (Mon.), and that senator announced that if present, Mr. Beveridge would vote for the amendacent.

Senator Nelson offered a free trade amendment, but placing the internal revenue taxes on goods coming into this country from Porto Rico. The amendment was lost, 29 to 11. The vote was the same as on the Davis amendment, except that Daniel (Dem., Va.) voted no.

The Porto Ricon bill passed the senate, 40 The detailed vote was as follows;

Yens-Adhson, Baker, Bard, Carter, Chandler, Clark (Wy.), Culiem, Deboe, Depew, Fairbanks, Foraker, Foster, Frye, Gallinger, Genr. SENATORS WRANGLED

OVER OUAY CASE

Walcott Accused Lodge of Making a Statement That Was "Unqualifiedly False"-Latter Replied Mildly,

Washington, April 4.—Acting under the unanimous consent agreement, reached on March 16, that the Quay case should be taken up "subject to the consideration of appropriation bills, conference reports, the present unfinished business and senate bill 2,355," the Spooner bill as to the government of the Philippines, Mr. Lodge moved that the Spooner bill be made the unfinished business, after the Porto Ricon bill was disposed of in the senate.

This was objected to by the friends of Mr. Quay and Mr. Wolcott (Rep., Col.) moved to adjourn. The motion was lost -29 to 29.

Mr. Lodge then renewed his motion. It was antagonized by Mr. Chandler, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, who had no objection to the measure, but did not want it to displace the Quay case.

After some further discussion Mr. Welcott again moved to adjourn, the motion being deteated--25 to 31.

The whole question of the unanimous consent agreement was gone into. Further along, Mr. Lodge said:

"It is perfectly obvious that I can obtain no good result by detaining the senate. The purpose of Mr. Quay's friends is plain. That is all I desire to show. I have no objection to the senate either adjourning or going into executive session, but I consider the unanimous consent agreement at au end." "I do not know how the senator from Massa-chusetts classifies himself," retorted Mr. Wol cott, "whether as a friend or as an enemy of Mr. Quay. It is hard to tell who are his friends and who are his enemies. But when any suggestion or intimation is made that there is any unworthy or unrighteous purpose in pressing the consideration of that case as a matter of the highest privilege, the person who makes that statement goes far out of his way to state that which is unqualifiedly false."

Mr. Lodge; "I made no charge against any one. I said that I had been deprived of the right which I thought I clearly had. I am not going to press it and I am not going to hold the senate. If the unanimous consent is broken, of course that is the end of it. It can not be binding in one case and not be binding

COLDIERS ENFORCED PEACE.

Before That There Was Much Rioting In Idaho Strike District, Said Witness Burbridge.

Washington, April 4.—Superintend-Burbridge, of the Bunker Hill mine, was a witness before the Idaho strike investigating committee.

The miners' union at Wardner met on Sunday, April 23, a week before the explosion, and sent a delegation to him, Burbridge, to demand $3.50 a day all around. He was paying $3. After fruitless conferences a strike was ordered. The Bunker Hill employes were stopped on the road by an armed mob. Revolvers were flourished and the workmen were chased through the screets. Later in the day an armed mob took possession of the tramway of the mine and held it for a time.

Mr. Burbridge said he received frequent warnings that he would be killed and the mine blown up.

Representative Sulzer asked for the names of those giving warnings. Mr. Burbridge declined to give the names, saying it would imperil the lives of those who gave the warnings. The Idaho courts had upheld him, he said, in this refusal to divulge names. Mr. Sulzer protested, but the committoe, on a vote, permitred the witness to proceed without disclosing names.

The witness said the presence of the military was essential to the maintenance of peace, the only objections to the military came from those who wished to break the law.

Cross-examination brought out that the company discharged men when it became known that they belonged to a union. The witness said there was such a conflict between the union and nonunion men that the company took its side with the non-union men, declining to employ members of the union.

COMES TO VOTE TOMORROW.

The House Considered Substitute For Senate Hawaiian Bill.

Washington, April 4.—The house entered upon consideration of the substitute for the senate Hawaiian territorial bill under a special order which will bring the question to a vote tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The debate was in committee of the whole and only three of the six speeches were pertinent to the bill. Mr. Knox (Mass.), chairman of the committee on territories, delivered a carefully prepered speech in advocacy of its passage.

Mr. Robinson criticised a section in the bill which he said continued in force labor contracts existing in Ha-Hawii, denouncing it as legalizing a system of wage slavery.

Mr. Mondell (Wy.) spoke generally in support of the bill. Mr. Lane (Ia.), one the Republicans who opposed the Porto Rico tariff bill, made a vigorous speech reaffirming his position and inces continue. Spaniards, Chinamen warning his Republican associates that fair policy toward the Porto Ricons.

Mr. Thomas (N. C), Mr. Williams (Miss.) and Mr. Boutelle (Ills.) discussed imperialism.

Won't Reduce War Taxes.

Washington, April 4.—The subject of a reduction in the revenues by congress was discussed by the cabinet. It is understood that the administration is in favor of a revision of the war revenue act, so as to cut down the receipts. but in view of the fact that to make any move in that direction probably would prolong the present session of congress for many weeks, if not months, it is thought by representative Republicans that nothing on this line would be advisable at this session.

PROMINENT DEMOCRATS

IN HARRISBURG.

Pennsylvania Convention Convenes Tomorrow-Guffey on Hand-Fitzsimmons to Be Chairman.

HARRISBURG, April 4.—The Democratic state convention will meet in this city tomorrow to name candidates for congress at large and auditor general, and select eight delegates at large to the national convention at Kansas City. The convention will also endorse the selection of 56 district delegates and select presidential electors. There are no candidates for auditor general, and it looks now as if the nomination would go begging. There are several aspirants for delegates at large and presidential electors.

Colonel James M. Guffey, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania's representative on the national committee, is here to attend the convention. He was joined by State Chairman Rilling, of Erie, Congressman J. K. P. Hall, of Elk, and other party leaders. Few of the delegates are expected to reach here before today. Colonel Frank J. Fitzsimmons, of Scranton, will be chairman of the convention.

CONGRESSMEN RENOMINATED.

Dalzell and Graham Rechosen In Pittsburg and Allegheny.

PITTSBURG, April 4.—John Dalzell was renominated in the Twenty-second congressional district convention. Strong resolutions of endorsement of the national administration policy were adopted, and Mr. Dalzell made an address.

William H. Graham, of Allegheny, was renominated for congress in the Twenty-third district convention. The strong feature of this convention was that Quay was endorsed. State Senatar C. L. Magee was renomamted in the Forty-third district and John W. Crawford was nominated in the Forty-fifth district.

Federal Steel and Baltimore and Ohio Cut a Big Splurge In the Market.

New York, April 4.—The two most potent factors in Tuesday's stock market were Federal Steel and the Baltimore and Ohio stocks. The pressure to liquidate the former had a decidedly unsetfling influence on the whole market in the morning, and the strength of the latter stock served to stiffen prices during the afternoon and to restrict to a large extent the early decline. The opening in Federal Steel was wide and the price was soon carried down to 49, a drop of 43 from Monday's close. It rallied 2 points, but went off again in the ast 15 minutes of the market to the lowest, developing renewed signs of weakness in the rest of the list.

The selling of the stock was due to the practical admission that the failure to amend the charter Monday at the annual meeting was equivalent to the abundanciat of further dividead distributions this year, owing to head ouscarles. The strength in Baltimore and Obio developed after the executive commatter lad convened. It was generally understood that this mestic would consider the grading of additional rights to stockholders. A new runer found circulation about every five minwas as to what the right, would be, and the speculation in the stocks of the company was very active. The common stock touched 881, and the preferred 85, and both reacted 2 points on profit taking, helping to the easier tone in the close. Sagar was actively dealt in, but after an early decline of over a point mounted upward I points on the reported easing in the price of raw sugars. The price cased off in the late decline, bringing the not advance down to 14. The money market worked somewhat easier Tuesday, as the influence of the April disbursements is beginning to be felt. There is no further apprehension in stock market circles on money market considerations. The bond market continued quite active, and changes in prices were mixed. Total sales, par value, $1.750,-United States 3s, coupon, new 4s and 5s declined 4 in the bid price.

Paris, April 4.—Now that the exposition buildings are practically completed it is found that the tower of the Turkish pavilion will so obstruct the view of the adjoining American national pavilion that Commissioner Peck has deemed it imperative to make another strong effort to secure its removal.

He has therefore written a vigorously worded protest to the director general of the exposition. The United States ambassador, General Horace Porter, is seconding the commissioner's efforts.

Regarding the Sanday opening question, Commissioner Peck has received a petition signed by a mass of American exhibitors in the engineering and matchinery section, which is situated in the park of Verceines, requesting permis-Son to remain open on Sundays, Suntay being the only day in the week on which they expect a large attendance owing to the park being out of the way for most of the Parisians. The resignation, it is understood, was sent directly to the president by Mr. Davis, but was referred to the secretary of the interior, to be accepted by him in the regular course. Secretary Hitchcock declined to say anything in regard to the resignation. He believed that the statements made by Mr. Davisfully covered the case. The secretary refused to make public the text of the letter of resignation or that of the acceptance of it.

ity of Being True. Washington, April 4.--War department officials do not believe the story that comes from South Africa to the effect that Captain Carl Reichmann, Seventeenth infantry, was one of the leaders of the Boers at the last fight between the Boers and English at the Bloemfontein waterworks. Adjutant General Corbin would not even discuss the possibility of the story being true. Reichmann's brother officers, men who know him well, say that it is very probable that Reichmann occupied some conspicuous point of vantage from which to view the fight, and his discovery in uniform by the British was the basis for the assumption that he was one

CHAPTER VI. Robert Hardy reached his office just in time to see Burns, the foreman, go out of a side door and cross the yard. The manager followed him and entered the machine shop in time to see him should spend his time and money and stop at a machine at the farthest end of the shop and speak to the man at work there. The man was a Norwegian, Herman by name. He was running what is called a planer, a machine for trimming pieces of cold metal just from the foundry or the casting those conditions. My son," Mr. Hardy room. He was at work this morning on one of the eccentric bars of a locomotive, and it was of such a character that he could leave the machine for several minutes to do the planing.

Burns talked with this man for awhile and then moved across the floor to the other workman, a small boned, nervous little fellow, who was in charge of a boring machine which drove a steel drill through heavy plates of iron fastened into the frame. Mr. Hardy came up just as Burns turned away from this man and touched him on the shoulder. The foreman started and turned about, surprised to see the manager.

Well, Burns, how goes everything this morning?" asked Robert.

"The men here are grumbling because they don't have a holday same as the men in Scoville's department." "But we can't shut down the whole business, can we?" asked Mr. Hardy. with a momentary touch of his old time feeling. "The men are unreasonable." "I'm afraid there'll be trouble, sir.

I can feel it in the air." replied Burns. Mr. Hardy made no reply in words. but looked at him. Within the blackened area of the great shop about 200 men were at work. The whirl of machinery was constant. The grind of steel on iron was blended with the rattle of chains and the rolling of the metal carriages in their tracks. The Genius of Railroading seemed present in the grim strength and rapidity of several machines which moved almost as if instinct with intelligence and played with the most unyielding substances as if they were soft and pliable clay. In the midst of all the smashing of matter against itself, through the smoke and din and dust and revolution of the place. Mr. Hardy was more than usually alive this morning to the human aspect of the case. His mind easily went back to the time when he himself stood at one of these planers and did just such work as that big Norwegian was doing, only the machines were vastly better and improved now. Mr. Hardy was not ashamed of having come along through the ranks of manual labor. In fact, he always spoke with pride of the work he used to do in that very shop, and he considered himself able to run all by himself any piece of machinery in the shops, but be could not belp envying these men this morning. "Why." he said, "probably not one of them but has at least seven weeks to live and most of them seven months or years, while I- Why should these men complain because they are not released from toil? Isn't toil sweet when there are a strong body and a loving wife and a happy home? O God," he continued to think, "I would give all my wealth if I might change places with any one of these men and know that I would probably have more than a week to live."

Mr. Hardy walked back to the office. leaving the foreman in a condition of wondering astonishment.

"Something wrong in his works, I guess." muttered Burns.

Mr. Hardy sat down to his desk and wrote an order releasing all the men who desired to attend Scoville's funeral in the afternoon. He did not have it in his power to do more, and yet he felt that this was the least he could do under the circumstances. The more he thought of Scoville's death the more he felt the cruel injustice of it. The injuries were clearly accidental, but they might have been avoided with proper care for human life, and Robert Hardy was just beginning to understand the value of hu-

When noon sounded, he went home resolved to do something as far as lay in his power to make the men feel that

Mr. Hardy paused, then went on again: "I am perfectly aware, George, that you regard my dream as a fancy strength, such as even the dying someand think I am probably out of my mind. Isn't that true?"

Mr. Hardy looked George full in the face, and the young man stammered: "Well-1-ah-yes-1-don't just understand"-

"At the same time," went on his father, "I realize that nothing but a conviction of reality could produce the change in me which you and all the has taken place. And you must confess that I am acting far more rationally than I did before my dream occurred. It is not natural for a father to neglect his own children, and I have done it. It is not rational that he strength on himself so as to grow intensely selfish, and I have done that. My son, you may doubt me, but I am firmly convinced that I shall not be alive here after next Sunday. When I am gone, your mother and the girls will look to you for advice and direction. You will probably have to leave college for a little while. We will talk that over this evening. But I want you to promise me that you will not touch another glass of liquor or handle another eard as long as you

George laughed a little uneasily and then lied outright: "I don't see the harm of a game once in awhile just for fun. I don't play for stakes, as some fellows do."

"George," said his father, looking at him steadily. "you have not told the truth. You were gambling only a few nights ago. It is useless for you to deny it. That is where the very liberal allowance I have given you has been squandered."

George turned deathly pale and sat with bowed head while his father went on almost sternly; "Consider your mother, George, whose heart almost broke when you came in last night. I don't ask you to consider me. I have not been to you what a father ought to be. But if you love your mother and sisters and have any self respect left you will let drink and cards alone after this. In the sight of God, my dear boy, remember what he made you for. You are young. You have all of life before you. You can make a splendid record if God spares your

"I would gladly give all I possess to stand where you do today and live my life over again. I can't do it. The past is irrevocable. But one can always repent. George, believe me, your mother would rather see you in your coffin than see you come home again as you did last night. We love you"-

Mr. Hardy, proud man that be was, could say no more. He laid his hand on the boy's head as if he were a young lad again and said simply, "Don't disappoint God, my boy," and went out, leaving his son sitting there almost overcome by his father's powerful appeal, but not yet ready to yield himself to the still small voice that spoke within even more powerfully and whispered to him: "My son, give me thine heart. Cease to do evil; learn to do well. Cleanse thy ways and follow after righteousness."

It was 1 o'clock when Mr. Hardy came down stairs, and as he came into the room where Mrs. Hardy and the girls were sitting he happened to think of some business matters between himself and his only brother, who lived in the next town, 20 miles down the road.

He spoke of the matter to Mrs. Hardy, and she suggested that Will go down on the 3 o'clock train with the papers Mr. Hardy wanted to have his brother look over and come back on the 6 o'clock in time for dinner.

Clara asked if she couldn't go, too, and Bessie added her request, as she had not seen her aunt for some time. Mr. Hardy saw no objection to their going, only he reminded them that he wanted them all back at 6. Alice volunteered to amuse George at home while all the rest were gone, and Mr. and Mrs. Hardy departed for the funeral, Mr. Hardy's thoughts still absorbed for the most part with his older boy. Clara had asked no questions concerning the interview with James, and her father simply stated that they could have a good talk about it in the evening.

The tenement at No. 760 was crowded, and in spite of the wintry weather large numbers of men and women stood outside in the snow. Mr. Hardy had ordered his sleigh, and he and his wife had gone down to the house in office work until noon. He did what that, ready to take some one to the times are known to possess. She had escaped from her sister and the neighbor who were watching with her and, crazy with grief, flung herself over the coffin, moaning and crying out in such heartbreaking accents that all present were for a moment flung into a state of inaction and awe.

But Mrs. Hardy was first to move toward the stricken woman. Where did rest of the family must acknowledge the wife of the once haughty and proud man learn the touch of sympathy that drew that other poor sister nearer to her and finally soothed her into quietness? Certain it is that suffering in her own home had marvelously taught the richly dressed woman, the refined, cultured lady, to hold this other one to be of the same household of God with her. So it was that she finally succeeded in drawing her away into the other room and there held her, gasping for breath, now that the brief strength was spent, and crying feebly: "O God, help me! Don't keep me here in this world any longer!"

If this brief scene thrilled the neighbors with pity, what shall be said of Its effect on Robert Hardy? For a moment it seemed to him more than he could bear. He started to his feet and put his hands before his face. Then, calming himself by a great effort, he sat down, and his face became almost like a stone in its rigidity. When his wife finally succeeded in getting the woman into the rear room, his face relaxed, and he breathed more easily, but as soon as possible he arose and went out and stood silent there until the body was brought out and placed in the hearse. Then he went in and spoke a few words to his wife and told Mr. Jones that he could take four or five to the cemetery if they wished to go. Mrs. Hardy would stay with the suffering widow until he came back. Mr. Hardy also whispered something to his minister and gave him a large roll of bills to be used for the family, then went out again.

That ride in the cold gray of the declining winter afternoon was a bitter experience to Robert. He roused himself at the grave as he heard the words, "Raise us from the death of hope shot through his heart at the words. Mr. Hardy had just said something about Clara, and Mrs. Hardy replied, "Isn't it about time they were here?" when the telephone bell rang in the little office adjoining the hallway, where Mr. Hardy did some of the business of the company, being connected by wire with the shops. He went in and answered the call, and a series of sharp He Took Chafr, but State Committee exclamations and questions was soon followed by his coming back into the room where his wife sat. By the light of the open fire she could see that he was very pale. His overcoat was lying on the couch where he had thrown it as he came in. He hastily put it on and then said to his wife:

"Mary, there has been an accident to the 6 o'clock way train between Baldwin and here, and Burns has telephoned me to come down. Don't be alarmed. We will hope for the best." Mrs. Hardy started up.

"Why, Will and Bess and Clara were coming home on that train!"

"Mary"-Mr. Hardy's voice trembled, but he tried to speak calmly and in comfort-"let us hope for the best." "What did Mr. Burns telephone? Tell me all, Robert. I can bear it with you."

"He telephoned that the train was derailed and a dozen people killed and as many injured. I must go down the road at once. Oh, my God, spare our dear ones!"

Mr. Hardy was almost overwhelmed by this last stroke, and yet he asked himself how many accidents had occurred this last year on the road, and quick gathering of passion and he had never given much thought to sharpshooters in the trees behind.

At the yard he found a special train just ready to go to the scene of the aceident. It consisted of a wrecking car, a caboose and one coach with tender and engine. He mounted the engine with a feeling that it was a little nearer the fatal spot and would reach there first. At the last minute no more definite news concerning the particular persons killed and injured had been received.

Mr. Hardy felt almost glad of the uncertainty as the engine pulled out and started on its run of 15 miles, soon attaining a speed of 55 miles an hour. The snow was falling in large, moist flakes. It was growing warmer and would rain before morning. He gazed at the narrow band of light on the track ahead and leaned forward as if to help the engine go faster. He did not speak, and so the train rushed through the night.

And so the second of Robert Hardy's seven days drew to a close.

HOWLEY OPPOSED BY GUFFEY.

Will Decide.

Pittsburg, April 2.—There was a spirited contest at the meeting of the Allegheny county Democratic committee, called to elect a chairman and two members of the state committee. Chairman Joseph Howley was a candidate for re-election. Colonel J. M. Guffey was opposed to him, and his friends named Thomas B. Alcorn. George W. Acklin was Howley's teller, and Frank P. Iams acted for Alcorn. Acklin claimed Howley's election by a vote of 156 to 107; . Iams insisted that Alcorn had been elected by a vote of 128 to 123.

Mr. Howley took the chair despite protests, and Jere Dougherty and W. A. McDevitt were elected members of the state committee. Howley's election and right to preside were not recognized by the Alcorn supporters, who will carry the fight into the state committee.

We made an engagement to meet in this city, and met at Fifth and Plum streets. He professed to love me, and I loved him deeply. He had such pretty blue eyes. He spoke to me about his former wife, and expressed deep hatred for her. He said he would like to get her out of the way and then he could marry a girl who would make him happy. He proposed to me and I accepted him. We were to be married on Easter Sunday. One day we were looking over the paper and we noticed the advertisement for a girl at 912 Dayton street. He got white in the face and proposed that I take the position, for that was where Mrs. Winold was living. I did as he ordered.

"He never suggested that I should help him poison the family until Friday night, March 29. He acted wildly, and said that he would kill me if I did not do as he wanted me to do. MINING CAMP TRICKS.

One Instance Where a Scheme Worked the Wrong Way.

"There is a great deal that is out of the ordinary in mining," said Samuel Mott of Boise City, Ida., "although I think from personal experience it is probably more so in the relation than in the actual happening. In every mining camp I have known there have always been charges that those working a vein had gone through into the next claim in taking out the ore, and consequently were taking out what wasn't theirs. These claims it was always difficult to substantiate, for the reason that the offender, of course, would not allow the offended to enter his workings, and without a survey it would be impossible to make out a case. Every subterfuge and excuse possible was resorted to to get into a suspected mine.

"I remember one case in an apex of a vein suit, where the workings had been temporarily shut down and a man called 'Johnny Come Lately,' beavily armed, was on guard. The other side had tried again and again to get by 'Johnny,' but had always failed, when one man, who knew that 'Johnny' was an enthusiastic hunter, bired an acquaintance of his to stroll by with a gun over his arm and to engage 'Johnny' in a conversation about 'bar.' . It worked to a charm, and while he was thus engrossed they managed to slip in and survey the mine.

"Then there was the case of the Last Chance against the Tyler. In this case the workings happened to run together, and the Last Chance people were working the same vein from underneath that the Tyler owners were working from on top. Knowing they would sooner or later break through, the Tyler people prepared smudgethat is, saturated cordwood that would give forth a tremendous smoke-which, they hoped, would drive the Last Chance people out of their mine. But when they finally set it off it went the other way and made the Tyler workings absolutely untenable. Mint Mark Collections.

The mint mark collection is the latest thing in the line of numismatics. It is the fad of the specialist and has little attraction for the amateur. The object is to secure complete sets of perfeet specimens of all the coins issued from the different mints.

A great many people are scarcely aware that there is any way to distinguish the coins issued from the different mints. They may not have noticed the small "S" or "CC" beneath the eagle or under the wreath, and showing that the piece was coined at San Francisco or Carson City, or if it bears an "O" at New Orleans. And they may or may not know that if it has no mint mark it comes from the "mother mint" at Philadelphia. But the mint mark collector will see these little letters in an instant and is very apt to know just how many dimes, quarters, dollars or half dollars were turned out at any of the mints during any year since 1794.-Minneapolis Jour-

A Cat's Long Jump.

How far can a cat jump without burting itself was partly exemplified in Brooklyn the other night. A pretty white cat ran up a tree to get away from a dog and at last crawled out on a small branch at least 60 feet above the ground. The branch was not much more than a twig, and the cat could not turn around. She sat up there on the swaying limb and meowed. At last the twig broke, and down came the cat. She alighted on the ground tiated into the council. The local lodge on her feet, looked around for a monow has a membership of twenty-nine. A dispatch from Seattle announces the presence of Colonel Bryan there in a somewhat fatigued condition from his journey and the numerous speeches he made in the farming districts of the state. The fatigue has probably been increased by the lack of enthusiasm with which his arraignment of the expansion policy of the administration has been received in the great Pacific Northwest where expansion and prosperity go hand in hand.

The Canton News Democrat points a moral for the benefit of its party from the disaster which befell Canton's Democratic ticket on Monday. "In the future follow the example of the Republicans," is in effect the substance of its remarks. "It is the policy of the Republicans," says the Democrat with great truth, "always to get together -- no matter what their differences—before elections. Democrats get together after election. Such is the sagacity of one, and such is the brutal stupidity of the other."

Prospects for an early ending of the war in South Africa are not so bright as they seemed a few days ago. The extension of the campaign into the African autumn, with the prospect of it lasting until mid-winter, has seriously altered the British plans. No preparations had been made by the war office for a winter campaign, and the cold weather equipment of the troops is only now going out. Another cause for British discouragement is the fact that there appears to be plenty of resistance left in the Boers. They have been acting on the aggressive for several days past and it is now accepted as a first principle by the British commanders that their troops, to be successful, must be overwhelmingly superior in numbers to the enemy. It is obvious, therefore, that Lord Roberts has Read the want columns daily.

The Puerto Rican tariff bill, passed by the Senate late on Tuesday afternoon, will satisfy every one except those who have been arging the adoption of a measure guaranteeing unrestricted trade between the United States and the island. This sentiment is too strong in certain quarters to bend to the suggestion made by the supporters of the bill that the measure offers the best means for giving the island revenue for the short period during which revenues! must temporarily be provided until a better means can be devised. It is probable, however, that the future will demonstrate the soundness of this argument. and Relatives-Brief Record of a Life Which has Left Its Mark in Massillon-Funeral Thursday.

The morning edition of THE INDEPEN-DENT contained a brief notice of the death of Mrs. Susan Kachler which occurred at her late residence in East Tremont street on Monday evening. Mrs. Kachler's illness, caused by the infirmities of age, has extended over a Puerto Rico should and will have free period of several weeks, and was not uptrade as soon as it can show that the expected by members of the family who revenue needed by its government can be were with her constantly until the end. guaranteed by some other method than She became unconscious some hours before she breathed her last and in that duty of 15 per cent. of the Dingley tariff state passed away. Mrs. Kachler was identified with Massillon by many ties, being among the best known, oldest and most honored members of the community; her death will be accordingly a scurce of widespread and sincere regret.

Mrs. Kachler, the youngest of five sis ters, was the daughter of Valentine and Sybille Dietrich and was born in Germersheim, Bavaria, on May 26, 1813. Her marriage to the late Edward Kachler took place in Oppenheim, on the Mrs. Kachler came to this country, and after a year's residence in Canton, came to Massillon where Mr. Kachler was engaged in business until within a few years of his death, which occured in February, 1898. Five children were born to them, all of whom are dead. The eldest. Charles, will be best remembered here. He served in the army during the civil war and died of camp fever in 1866 Mrs. Kachler's meccand nearest relative, Mrs. Anna C. Dieterich, formerly of Heidelberg, Germany, with her family, has resided in Msssillon for the past ten years. Since Mr. Kachler's death Miss Elizabeth Dieterich has made her home with Mrs. Kachler.

As a representative of the highest type of social life in her own country, Mrs. Kachler has for more than half a century occupied a place in the affections of German residents of Massillon which will probably never be filled again. Her circle of acquaintance was, however, by no means confined to her compatriots. neighbors, and until within a few years paid and received calls with a formality, the gentle stateliness of which was but an added charm to her cordial kindliness of manner. From Deep Sorrow to Great Joy

What Mother's Love and Tender Care Failed to Accomplish Hood's Sarsaparilla Promptly Effected.

"I would cry every time I washed my baby!"

This plaintive sentence tells a volume of mother's agony. In such a dreadful condition from eruptions and sores, Mrs. Guerinot's child received the tenderest care that mother's love could give, and the most skillful medical attendance that father's means could provide. Yet all failed until they turned to Hood's Sarsaparilla, which in this as in thousands of other cases has seemed to be the last resort, yet it has not failed. The result was inevitable - just as certain to cure as that day follows night. Evening's weeping turned to morning's rejoicing. That is what Hood's Sarsaparilla will do for you if you will only let it. Just read Mrs. Guerinot's letter. It is a characteristic Hood's Sarsaparilla testimonial:

"My baby was three months old when festers broke out on his neck. The openings appeared like boils, spread down his back and along the spinal column until it appeared as one mass of sores. Our doctor prescribed for the case, but the disease spread and the little one's sufferings increased and he became a mere shadow. His pitiful wailing was heart-rending. It nearly crazed me, weary and worn-out as I was from constant watching and nursing. The discharge of matter was so profuse that it was necessary to dress his back three times a day. Every time the bandages were removed blood would flow and for a time even powders and different salves did not check the trouble. It became necessary to wrap the little body in silk. When the trouble appeared at its height our anxiety was increased by the appearance of a boil just outside the id alongside one of his eyes. We feared lest the scrofulous matter get into the eye, and even if his life was spared to us, that his sight would become affected.

"I had about given up hope of saving my baby, when I was asked why I did not try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Eager for anything that held out hope, I procured a bottle of Hood's. I also got a cake of Hood's Medicated Soap and a box of Hood's Olive Oinfment. I immediately laid aside all the doctor's medicines and gave the infant the smallest dose of the Sarsaparilla prescribed, and then took off the bandages and washed the mass of sores with the Medicated Soap. Next I applied the Olive Ointment and adjusted a fresh wrapping of silk. A change was noticeable the next Sunday, giving assurance that we had at last hit upon the treatment to successfully battle the poisonous blood. "Slowly but with a perceptible gain, the discharge grew less, the inflammation disappeared, the surrounding skin took on a more healthy color, and what a short time before had been a mass of raw flesh began to scale over and gradually a thin skin formed and the scales dropped off. Not a scar or blemish around the eye, neck or back or anywhere on his body is to be found, and now at eight months old he is as bright, healthy and full grown as any child of that age. Less than two bottles of-Hood's Sarsaparilla, aided by Hood's Medicated Soap and Hood's Olive Ointment, accomplished this wonderful cure.

"I cannot begin to express my gratitude towards Hood's Sarsaparilla and your other medicines for the good they accomplished in my baby's case." Mrs. N. GUERINOT, 37 Myrtle St., Rochester, N. Y.

For the cure of all blood diseases and Spring Humors, Hood's Sarsaparilla is unequalled. Try it.

The statutes ascribe a penalty for any election official who violates or neglects his duty. Section 26 of the same law says, "Any person who shall knowingly attempt to vote any other than an official ballot, lawfully obtained, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined not less than $250, nor more than $1,000, or be imprisoned for not less than thirty days, nor more than six mouths, or both." From this it appears Stump's election alone is legal. It is furthermore said that the election officials threw out the votes for the latter, saying that they had not been cast in accordance with their rules. The county board of elections is again in session this afternoon, and the matter will receive a thorough discussion. The deputy state supervisor of elections has also been informed and will give the matter attention.

Prosecutor Day this morning presented to the county commissioners a bill of $82 50, the amount of his expenses incurred in looking up the circumstances of the Henderson case.

John S. Connor, with Miller & Pomerene as attorneys, has begun suit against Frank Gaskill and the W. & L. E. Rail way Company for $1,000 damages. The plaintiff alleges that he is the owner of a certain railway car, and that the detention of the latter by the defendants has damaged him in the amount named.

The motion for a new trial in the Henderson case may come up before Judge McCarty Thursday morning. Judge Baldwin, Henderson's sentor counsel, has been confined to his bed with exhaustion from the day that the verdict was reached. It is thought, however, that he will be able to be present tomorrow.

BULLER AS A HUNTER.

British General's Novel Experience In Iowa.

ROUGHING IT IN THE EARLY DAYS

Story Told by an lowan of One of Buller's Hunting Trips In the Northwestern Part of the State. How He Made a Farmer's Wife Bappy.

Jim Farback sat on a cracker box in the grocery store at Humboldt, Ia., and told a simple story of a great Englishman, who has kept the world interested in his doings for several months, says the Chicago Times-Her-

"He was a bigbug Englishman," he said; "some kind of a sir. He didn't care no more for money than he did for dirt. He used to come to Humboldt most every fall and hunt chickens and ducks, and I used to drive him and his crew out over the northwest part of the state for about a week or so and back some new way to Humboldt. When was it? Well, I guess the last time he was here must have been about 1875 or 1876. It was some years before the railroads, anyway, except the one that had got to Algona.

"He wasn't one of your stuck up Englishmen that can't find nothing good enough for him-and eating and sleeping in country shanties was pretty tough them days. There wasn't a house from about seven miles above Algona to the Minnesota line except the sod tavern, as they called it, and even that wasn't no palace. Their house well was right in the barnyard. But Buller (that was the Englishman's name), he wouldn't allow nobody to kick or make fun of the places where we put up.

"He had an awful easy way with him that made the women folks get over their first scare right off. The last time he was here we were up in Kossuth county, and we thought we would make the sod tavern for all night. We got there at milking time. and I went to the baruyard, where the man and his wife were milking. Says I, 'Can we stay here tonight?' 'Waal, I guess so,' says he. Then he hollered to his woman, and she gave him such a dressing down as I don't care to tell in the way she done it. She said there wa'nt no flour in the house, nor no meat, nor no tea, nor no coffee, nor no sugar, nor no nothing, and then for him to say we could stay!

"Well, just as soon as I got my breath I went back to the wagon and showed Buller a house off west, about five miles, I guess, and we drove over there pretty fast. When we got up to the door, three pigs run out, and pretty soon a woman came from the back room, and my, but she was dirty! She had been chinking up the cracks with mud, and the house just did look

"'Waal,' she says, I guess you'll have to, for ther ain't no other place, but we bain't got nothing to eat but and this one bed.'

"Say, did you ever sit around and watch a meal cook when you was just and kin. When bedtime came, we carried in a lot of hay and spread it on the floor, and with our blankets and big supper and being tired we slept first rate. We had took our boots off. We never slept in our boots. It sweat settle up Buller asked how much the But after some urging she said 'mebbe 2 shilling apiece would be about right and throw in the horses.

"Well, sir, you ought to have seen that Englishman stare. He turned red in the face and spoke up kind of sharp--throw in the horses!' and he pulled out never keep a hunter for less than $1. for if he ain't rich he's throwing away money, and you might as well have some of it as anybody.'

"Well, sir, that poor woman shook just like as if she had a spell. She said she hadn't seen so much real money all summer, and she hadn't seen a silver balf dollar since the first year of the war. My stars, but we thought a lot of that feller!

"I hadn't never heard him swear till that day. But when we left that cabin for a long time he didn't seem to hear or see anything, but kept looking off straight ahead like, when all of a sudden he broke out, 'It isn't right-it's a blarsted crime-that gives one so much and another so little! And from that he went on for half an hour, I guess, running from Bible talk to cuss words A Born Soldier and One of the and talking about the poor and the rich in a way I can't tell, but it was so touching and so kind that I liked it all. Even the cuss words seemed all right to me then, though I never swear. Say, that fellow is in South Africa now. I see.'

AN ISTHMIAN CANAL'S VALUE

Captain J. W. Miller Speaks on the Probable Extent of Its Commerce.

Captain Jacob W. Miller, N. M., N. Y., of the original United States interoceanic government survey, is of the opinion that the Nicaragua canal would be a profitable investment for the United States, says the New York Sun. In an address before the Commercial club at Boston he said:

"Assuming that the canal will cost $115,000,000, the fundamental question presents itself. Will the trade warrant such an outlay? 'SLIM PIET" JOUBERT.

Story of the Famous Boer General's Career.

DESCENDANT OF THE HUGUENOTS.

World's First Military Geniuses. His Remarkable Foresight and Horror of War-Characteristic Stories Told About Him.

There could be no more fitting epitaph for the late General Petrus Jacobus Joubert than the words of General Sir, George White, who said in a speech at Cape Town the other evening while the Boer general was dying, although General White could not have known that:

General Joubert was about 68 years old. He was born in Cape Colony, but when 7 years old his parents took him into the Orange Free State. He had little schooling, yet, though he never saw a newspaper until he was 19 years old, he became well educated through his own efforts. After Cronje's capture Joubert took command of the federal forces in the Free State. He passed the greater part of his time in the field, traveling in a special wagon and accompanied by his wife, who was Miss Fraser and wrote Oct. 27, soon after President Kruger delivered his ultimatum. It was written before Ladysmith. In it Joubert said: "It is with full and firm faith in God that we left home for this war, which has been forced upon us, Whiteing's "Fashionable Paris" in the to defend the liberty of our dear country, and we will conquer or die for her. terviewed the great modiste on the After the Jameson raid, which we happily repulsed (January, 1896), our govder the republic," said M. knew nothing until the war began," Then Joubert made a forecast, that time proved to be accurate, of the number of available men the British could put in the field immediately and the number that could reach the seat of war by December.

Like truly great generals, he had a horror of war. It might be supposed that he would like to hear of Majuba, for it was the victory he won there that gave the Transvaal independence. While passing through New York to visit the World's fair Joubert protested:

"Don't talk to me about Majuba Hill! I hate the very name. We fought against the English for our rights, and we would do so again."

When he was taking the field in the present war, Mr. Burleigh, a British correspondent, had the audacity to stop his special train. Joubert not only forgave him, but permitted him to take a photograph and talked with him. "It makes the heart of my soul bleed, this war," was his text.

There is a story of him which shows how deep was his knowledge. The head of the Krupp Gun works in Germany was once showing some people about the factory when they came upon an old, bearded, farmerlike man, who entered into the conversation. Krupp, who was amused by the old man's remarks, was amazed when he found that there was nothing that the maker of guns could tell this South Af- that in many cases a trimmer and a that Joubert could tell Krupp,

So every boy had to carry a rifle and know how to defend himself and his sisters. He was expected to prove his skill by bringing home bags of game. That's how we teach our boys. Isn't that so, Kruger?"

The burly president, thus appealed to, puffed his pipe contentedly for a few moments and then said, "Yes; we make our boys understand that the with ten hours pay. meek inherit the earth."

SUNSHINE RECORDER.

Chicago Man Invents New Device For Keeping Record of Light.

A sunshine recorder has been invented by David Block, an employee in the carriers' division of the Chicago postoffice. The device is expected to prove of great value for the purpose of obtaining automatic records of the intensity of the sunlight at all meteorological stations of the world, says the Chicago Tribune. Several sunshine recorders have been invented based upon the chemical or actinic effect of sunlight upon sensitized paper or upon the heat effects of sunlight concentrated upon a point by a lens. Although of some scientific interest, those invenyoung English speaking peoples, whose Transvaal during Kruger's absence in tions are not useful, because they give

The electric current passing through the sclenium cell is measured by an automatic instrument, which registers the slightest changes in the intensity of the current upon an end-geared cylinder. So great is the sensitiveness of selenium to light that even the weak reflected light of the moon may be recorded by means of the instrument. If desired, an arrangement for the simultaneous recording of the actinic intensity and the heating power of the sun's rays may be made with the inpital for a fortnight before the battle strument. The United States weather bureau for years has been in great need of an instrument such as Mr. Block has invented.

Owing to lack of time and the necessary appliances Mr. Block will not stop to perfect his invention, but he will place it at the disposal of the weather bureau to have it perfected in the bureau's mechanical laboratories.

Prehistoric Ditch Found.

A few days ago in the southern part of New Mexico a discovery was made that goes to show that the earliest inhabitants of this section of the country were not much behind the present generation in the matter of irrigating land, says a Tucson (A. T.) dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean. Workmen digging in a lava bed discovered an irrigating ditch constructed of a stuff somewhat resembling concrete in hardness and durability. The ditch was about two feet deep and two feet wide. The men who discovered the ditch followed it several hundred feet and were surprised when they came to a well made aqueduct that bridged over a part of the way that was considerably lower than the rest of the water

MACHINES FOR LESSEN ING THE DRUDGERY OF THE HOUSEHOLD.

 In the accompanying illustratious, says The Scientific American, we present two forms of a new dishwashing machine so constructed that the dishes to be cleaned are held rigidly in place to avoid all danger of breakage. The machine is the invention of Robert D. Parry and Edwin Evans.

The power driven machine shown in Fig. 1, designed for hotels and restaurants, is composed of two parts, a water reservoir and a cover hinged or booked on the reservoir. Within the water reservoir two carrier frames are mounted, the one rotating within the other. The outer carrier frame is provided with spring pressed clips shaped to receive and hold a dish firmly. The inner carrier frame is provided with brushes which pass over the inner surface of the dishes held in the clips, the outer surface being cleansed by brushes mounted in the reservoir. The two carrier frames are so mounted and connected by gearing that the inner brush carrying frame rotates at a speed many times that of the outer dish carrying frame. In the cover of the machine two openings are formed -an upper feed opening and a lower discharge opening. As the dishes are placed in the feed opening the clips are automatically opened by spreaders mounted in the cover to receive the dishes. The dishes in rotating are thoroughly brushed and washed. As they reach the discharge opening another spreader opens the clips, thus releasing them to glide out upon the table. The water reservoir can be heated in any desired manner. The inventors claim a speed of more than one dish per second for their power driven machine.

The smaller hand driven machine shown in Fig. 2, designed for family use, differs from the first in some details of construction. A single carrier frame is used containing semicylindrical sections similar to that lying beside the machine in Fig. 2. Each section consists of two hinged outer members and a number of horizontal wirework trays, upon which the dishes are placed. Brushes on the outer portion of the frame pass over the outer surface of any dish placed on the wirework rack fixed immediately over the carrier in the cover.

Both of the machines described are designed to wash dishes of all kinds, as well as knives, forks and spoons. Public tests made by the inventors have demonstrated the utility of their

Twenty Uses For Corn.

The Indian corn propaganda at the Paris exposition and the conventions recently held in the west in the interest of corn producers have brought out the fact that over 20 important products are now manufactured from corn. One of the most important produts is distilled spirits, the demand for which has increased greatly since the invention of smokeless powder, in the manufacture of which the spirits are dargely used. Among the other prodjucts made from corn are mixing glucose, crystal glucose, grape sugar, anhydrous grape sugar, special sugar, pearl starch, powdered starch, refined grits, flourine, dextrin, British gum, granulated gum, gum paste, corn oil, corn oil cake, rubber substitute, gluten feed, chop feed, gluten meal and corn germ. With the present economical methods of manufacture not a particle of corn is wasted. There is no refuse. –California Vineyardist.

Last Memorials of Lunar Life.

Writing in Knowledge on the moon as a dying world, Mr. Tepper says that with the diminution of the water and the atmospheric gases the decay of dying organisms would be more and more delayed. Since the total disappearance of the atmosphere no currents can possibly exist, and the finest, lightest dust must remain eternally undisturbed. There is no body more absorptive of light than finely divided carbon particles, hence their intensely black aspect. In the "seas" of the moon we may, therefore, have large areas covered by carbonaceous dust, the last remains of the former vegetable and animal organisms of our satellite.

NAPOLEON AT ST. HELENA.

His Indignation at Being Spied Upon by His Keepers.

One of the "Talks With Napoleon" quoted from Dr. O'Meara's diary in nation at being, as he considered it, spied upon while living at St. Helena.

officer is placed here to report about probably to the fact that it is the most me and to see me two or three times In the 24 hours and that they are talking of making him go into my chamber to see me if I did not come out. Any person," said he then, with considerable agitation, "who endeavors to force his way into my apartment will be a corpse the moment he enters it. If he ever eats bread or meat afterward, I am not Napoleon. This I am determined on.

"I know that I will be killed afterward, as what can one do against a camp? But what of that? I have faced death many a time. Besides I am convinced that this governor, this chief of jailers, has been sent out on purpose to poison me or put me to death some way or another or under some pretext by Lord Castlereagh.

"I have seen," continued he, "Russlans, Prussians, Arabs, Cossacks, Tartars, Spaniards, Persians, Turks" (here he enumerated a great many more), "and never in my life before did I behold so ill favored and forbidding a countenance or so down and horrid a look. He carries crime imprinted on his countenance. (Il porte le crime empreint sur son visage.) He is a man, to judge from his physiognomy, that one would select for the committal of any atrocious crime and as such has been selected out by your ministers, I suppose, on purpose to make away with me."

WON HIM A BRIDE,

The Ruse by Which One Young Man's Credit Was Established.

Major J. M. Burke told a good story of his experience in helping a friend to get the girl of his choice.

"He was a good fellow," said he, "but young and without much capital. The girl was a beauty and loved the boy, but the father (the same old irate father) objected and demanded that the boy show that he was capable of supporting a wife. This was in St. Louis about ten years ago, and the boy came to me with his troubles.

"'Never mind,' said I. 'I'll fix it up all right. By the way, how much will you take for your right leg?

"He looked at me as though I were crazy, but made no answer.

"'I'll give you $10,000 for it,' I said. "Will you take it?"

"'No, I won't,' he said. 'What do you take me for?

"Well, I knew the girl's father; he was a merchant, and I called to see him. We finally drifted around to talking about this young fellow, and the old man flared a little, stating that he wanted some one who could support a wife to have his daughter.

" 'Support a wife!' said I, in surprise. 'Why, he certainly can do all that. Only a few days ago he refused $10,-000 for a piece of property.'

"'His own property?' asked the father. 'Certainly,' said I.

"'Who offered him the money?' ask-

"'I did, and be refused it,' I answered. 'He claimed it was worth more.' "Well, this made a hit, and no more questions were asked. The boy is doing well now and has a good family. I haven't spoken to the father since.' -Washington Times.

The Height of Storms.

Professor F. H. Bigelow furnishes The American Journal of Science with some of the results of the international cloud work for the United States. The penetration of ordinary cyclones into the higher regions of the atmosphere is slight. They are only two or three miles deep. Hurricanes are five or six miles deep. The anticyclonic and cyclonic areas are hardly to be considered as centers of motion except in the very lowest strata, since currents of air blow directly over them from west to east, even in the cumulus region of the Rocky mountain districts. The ordinary circulation theory does not hold good. In each stratum from the surface to the cirrus level about as much air moves north as south, for there are enormous counter currents passing by each other at the same level and not over one another at different elevations. This puts a new aspect upon the entire problem of the general circulation.—Nature.

A prominent western clergyman, W. W. White by name, was a member of a learned society in which there were several members who were fond of quibbling. WOOD PANELING.

Beauties and Benefits - Pine Stained Green, Oak, Etc.

Paneling, whether it be of wood, plaster, stone or marble, is a handsome The Century records Neoleon's indig- and sensible form of wall decoration which is growing in popular favor. The term paneling, however, is almost sy-"I understand," said he, "that an nonymous with wood paneling, owing generally used, the other materials being costly and not so suitable for ordinary rooms.

Paneling with wood can be adapted with perfect success to the walls of small modern rooms, and the outlay need not be very much larger than that required for the purchase of the best wall paper, while the advantages are many.

Wood, in the first place, has the merit of keeping out the cold, and, from the decorative point of view, it has (if real, such as mahogany, wainut or oak) beauty of color and veining, coupled with a lasting effect.

The very simplest paneling is of pine, primed for painting or staining, and with this very good results may be obtained. For dining room walls, for instance, if stained green and polished, or stained oak and left unpolished, it is a sensible and becoming background.

This, again, looks equally well painted, especially white, and can be used in drawing room or hall, while a very effective way, at a still less cost, is to fix moldings upon the plaster above the skirting and treat both as wood. The appearance is every bit as good if the work is skillfully done.

There are also veneers of real wood which may be used for the purpose, and these are made so thin as to allow of their being bung almost as readily as wall paper.

The solid wood paneling is, however, much more important in effect and is not so extravagant in price as is generally imagined. Oak fumigated and polished is, of course, costly, but one has the alternative of pine, which can be primed and stained.

As a setting for handsome curtains, portieres and wall draperies nothing can surpass the soft, rich tones of wood, and walls treated after this fashion become a lasting joy.

"The queen," he says, "must have a house of from 80 to 100 rooms. It must stand high-several hundred feet above the sea. It must not be in a town, and there must be extensive private grounds attached to it and good roads for driving in the neighborhood. "There are certain things that always accompany the queen whenever she goes abroad. These include the queen's bed, her own favorite easy chair and footstool, a special table, all the plate, linen, glass and china that she requires, her carriage horses, donkey chair and donkey, harness and other accouterments, a wheel chair, sundry pictures and a small collection of framed photographs."

active person helpless and bed-ridden, with distorted limbs and shattered nerves; or it may be slow ma developing, with slight wandering pains, just severe enough to make one feel uncomfortable; the tendency in such cases is to grow worse, and finally become chronic. Like other blood diseases, Rheumatism is often inherited, and exposure to damp or cold, want of proper food, insufficient clothing, or anything calculated to impair the health, will frequently cause it to develop in early life, but more often not until middle age or later. In whatever form, whether acute or chronic, inherited, Rhoumatism is Strictly a Blood Disease, and no liniment or other external treatment can reach the trouble. Neither do the preparations of potasks and mercury, and the various mineral salts, which the doctors always prescribe, cure Rheumatism, but ruin the digestion and break down the constitution. A remedy which builds up the general health and at the same time rids the system of the poison is the only safe and certain cure for Rheumatism. S. S. S., made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful solvent, purifying properties, attacks the disease in the right way, and to the right place — the blood — and quickly neutralizes the acid and dissolves all poisonous deposits, stimulates and reinforces, the overworked, worn-out organs, and clears the system. of all unhealthy accumulations. S. S. S. cures permanently and thoroughly, and keeps the blood in a pure, healthy state.

Mr. J. O. Malley, 123 W. 15th Street, Indianapolis, Ind., for eighteen months was so terribly afflicted with Rheumatism he was unable to feed or dress himself. Doctors said his case was hopeless. He had tried fifty-two prescriptions that friends had given him, without the slightest relief. A few bottles of S. S. cured him permanently, and he has never had a rheumatic pain since. This was five years ago.

We will send free our special book on Rheumatism, which should be in the hands of every sufferer from this torturing disease. In constructing the top strand of the barbed wire the Big Four railroad fence is used until the corporation lim-If is reached, and then ordinary telephone wire is used to connect with the offices in this city. In many instances, where the posts have rotted, it is necessary to paint the wire and post with rubber paint to insulate the wire, day evening. wet weather as at any other time. The inventor expects to put in a newly invented form of glass insulator which is very cheap and the only one which has ever been found that can be used on a fence wire line.

thn the line wagon roads are crossed 37 times and railroads six times. At these crossings the line is either carried (brough a gas pipe conduit, with Insulated wire, or by building bridges, which is done by merely nailing a piece of timber 15 feet long to the last linger, Charles Bash and Bert Seifer. fencepost and extending perpendicularly high enough to allow clearance for traffic. In these crossings especially is the insulator which is mentioned above useful. It is simply put up and attached, having no screw pins and having perfect insulation. A great number of buildings are also crossed on the line, and in each instance where insulation is necessary the new glass insulator is used.

The whole line of 15 miles was built at a cost not to exceed $100, and the outfit for houses, receiver, transmitter, battery, call, etc., costs not over $10. The magnet bell style of call is used.

The barbed wire line is connected with the Independent long distance telephone line at Ingalls; hence Indianapolis and Greenfield are also connected to the above mentioned towns by the rural telephone.

The line has been in operation since Dec. 22 and has not been out of order except for a few hours, when a fast train on the railroad struck a cow, threw her body against the fence and broke the wire.

A telephone communication by this simple method is placed within the reach of every community and will be operated in this section of the country to a great extent. Farmers who do not have wires leading to their residences are supplied with a small telephone instrument about 6 by 6 by 8 inches at a very small cost. This little contrivance is so arranged that it can be attached to the main barbed wire at any point, and thus the rural friend is enabled to come in contact with his summer. city neighbor with a greater convenience than he has ever known be-

Three Poisons in Tobacco Smoke. C. Binz, in the Deutsche Aerzte-Zeitung, says there are three kinds of poison in tobacco smoke nicotine, that which is obtained by the slow ash formation; pyridine, etc., and carbonic oxide. Carbonic oxide is always easily shown to be present in tobacco smoke, Its percentage, depending upon the volume of the smoke gas, varies between .6 and 7.6. The variations depend upon the rapidity of the ash formation and the quantity of atmospheric air drawn in or the lung air blown out. Prevented a Tragedy.

Information given Mrs. George Long, of New Straitsville, O, prevented a dreadful tragedy and saved two lives. A frightful cough had long kept her awake every night. She had tried many rem edies and doctors, but steadily grew worse until urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery. One bottle wholly cured her and she writes this marvelous medicine also cured Mr. Long of a severe attack of pneumonia. Such cures are positive proof of the matchless merit of this remedy for curing all throat, chest and lung troubles. Only 50c and $1. Every bot-T. Baltz'y's drug store.
